

ABSTRACT

[0044] A stun gun system includes a stun gun having a housing with a first end and a second end, and an electronics package for generating a high voltage or other discharge. The first end is configured to form a handle which has a first pair of contacts and the said second end has a second pair of contacts. The stun gun system includes a first switch configured in a first position and the electronics package, is electronically connected through the switch to the first pair of contacts.